9:00 – 10:15 a.m. Rio Grande Center/West (Ballroom Level)	Social Media & AI in Legal Advertising: Ethics, Risks, and Practical Guardrails This program explores how law firms and legal marketing agencies are using social media and generative AI to design, target, and deliver legal advertising—and where ethics rules draw the line. Panelists will examine issues under the ABA Model Rules and key state interpretations, including accuracy of AI-assisted content, misleading impressions in short-form video, solicitation boundaries, and cross-border online outreach. Participants will gain practical frameworks for evaluating vendor relationships, building internal advertising review processes, using AI safely, and preparing for emerging regulatory developments. Graham Griffin, Web/Content Manager, Angel Reyes & Associates, Dallas, TX Kalin Dudley, Chief Digital Officer, cj Advertising, Nashville, TN Janeen Isaacson, Isaacson Law, Las Vegas, NV Moderator: Ryan Little, Little Legal, Honolulu, HI

10:30 – 11:45 a.m. Rio Grande Center/West (Ballroom Level)	When the Lawyer Becomes the Source of Evidence: Ethical Duties and Strategies When Client Information is Sought Through Subpoenas, Search Warrants, and Testimony. When the lawyer becomes the source of evidence, rather than the advocate, a host of ethical minefields emerge. This panel examines the professional responsibility challenges that arise when lawyers and law firms are compelled to disclose client information through subpoenas, search warrants, or court orders, or when counsel becomes a witness in a client-related matter. Panelists will address the intersection of confidentiality, privilege, and compliance with legal process; the ethical duties owed to current and former clients; and practical strategies for navigating law enforcement demands while minimizing privilege waiver and disciplinary exposure. The discussion will also consider firm policies for responding to subpoenas and warrants, managing internal conflicts, and preserving client trust when the lawyer’s own conduct or testimony is at issue. Lydia Lawless – Kramon & Graham, P.A., Baltimore, MD John Harris – Frankfurt Kurnit Klein & Setz PC, New York, NY Calon Russell – Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton LLP, San Francisco, CA Moderator: Bill Zapf – Cole Schotz P.C., Washington, D.C

12:45 – 2:00 p.m. Rio Grande Center/West (Ballroom Level)	Clear Thinking in a Charged Climate: A Practical Workshop for Lawyers and Ethics Counsel (Wellness) Political polarization, public distrust, and constant digital noise are making it harder for lawyers to remain focused, effective, and professionally grounded. This workshop cuts through that noise with practical, use-in-the-moment strategies for restoring clarity—strategies you can use yourself and also introduce to clients facing disciplinary issues or other stressful turning points. Participants will assemble a simple tool designed to help reset attention and steady the mind when pressures spike. Presented by Candace Bergeron Lenard, Director of Student Wellness and Community Engagement at Northwestern Pritzker School of Law with support from Wendy Muchman, Professor of Practice, Northwestern Pritzker School of Law, and Irwin Kramer, Kramer & Connolly, this session also opens the floor to attendee insights: How are you coping with today’s climate, and what strategies might help the profession move forward?
2:00 – 2:15 p.m. Rio Grande Foyer (Ballroom Level)	Break

2:15 – 3:30 p.m. Rio Grande Center/West (Ballroom Level)	When One Lawyer’s Problem Becomes Everyone’s: Imputation Across Practice Settings This panel will explore how rules of professional conduct —particularly Model Rules 1.10, 1.13, and 5.1–5.3—pose markedly different challenges depending on where lawyers practice, their professional backgrounds and roles, and the organizational contexts in which they work. Rather than treating professional obligations as abstract or uniform, the program examines how “imputed” knowledge, conflicts of interest, and supervisory duties actually function across diverse real-world practice settings. Central to its discussion will be how factors such as firm size, resource constraints, organizational structure, client sophistication, and institutional culture shape what “reasonable supervision” and ethical compliance realistically mean in practice. The panel will consider the ethical and practical impact of technology—especially with respect to artificial intelligence (for example, whether it is appropriate to view AI merely as a highly capable virtual paralegal or something more disruptive requiring special oversight protocols). In doing so, the panel will highlight how a one-size-fits-all regulatory model can obscure—not clarify—meaningful ethical expectations and outcomes as well as potential professional liability. Charles Davant, Williams & Connolly LLP, Washington, D.C. Ellen Pansky, Pansky Markle, South Pasadena, CA Doug Richmond, Senior Vice-President, Lockton Companies, LLC, Kansas City, MO Moderator: Ethan Burger, Law Firm Client Integrity Initiative, Washington, D.C.
